FROM THE CANTOR

I've read that after interviewing the President of the United States for the Atlantic Monthly, journalist Jeffrey Goldberg handed him a copy of the newly published "New American Haggadah," for which he had written some of the commentary. President Obama, who holds an annual Seder at the White House, thumbed through the pages and then asked: "Does this mean we can't use the Maxwell House Haggadah anymore?"

Regardless of your political preferences in this highly-charged 2012 election cycle, you can still appreciate in the president's comment a reflection, as Goldberg has written, of the great veneration American Jews have had for this Haggadah first published 1932. More than 50 million copies later, it does continue to be the gold standard and a favorite at many a Seder. After all, you can't beat the price. It was originally offered to anyone who bought a can of Maxwell House coffee, but now you can simply pick it up at many supermarkets. It's reassuring to know that if your old copies, like mine, tend to become excessively wine and horseradish-stained, it's easy to obtain replacements.

But these days you have a choice, because Maxwell House is no longer the only free Haggadah in town. There is a competing version at the ShopRite supermarket published by a Michigan company that features Gold's products on the cover. So this year I had to decide whether upon sitting down to retell the story of the Exodus I wanted to be reminded of my morning cup of coffee or my evening bowl of borsht. Of course with Gold's I could also contemplate some schav, which was a favorite growing up in my home. There is also depicted on the cover a full selection of horseradish, which was also a favorite, although we called it chraim, and it was homemade with my father grinding the root by hand in the pre-foodprocessor era. I will tell you that I settled upon the Gold's Haggadah, perhaps because of design considerations, but also, I think, because there on the cover was included a jar of Hungarian Cabbage Soup, which in my mother's sweet and sour version, was out of this world.

But on the subject of food, it's really quinoa that has taken up most of my attention in recent days. Having received a call questioning whether it was kosher for Pesach, I researched the matter and found it to be a little more complex than I had hoped. It depends on whether quinoa is considered to be in the category of kitniyot, and whether the plant is grown or processed together with grains such as wheat and barley, as well as a number of other important considerations. The answer I offered to the questioner was necessarily a nuanced one reflecting the various opinions and approaches to the subject.

But the point I really want to make is that I'm always impressed by how seriously folks take the matter of Passover kashrut. Even those who are not otherwise very careful about kashrut and Jewish ritual will, when it comes to Pesach, exercise a little more care. I have seen over the years fellow Jews walk into a coffee shop in Manhattan and insist that their BLT be served on matzah!

This faithfulness to Pesach traditions is gratifying and owed perhaps to our memories of parents going to great lengths to prepare for and observe the holiday. Or there may be something intrinsic to this holiday--which celebrates our freedom from bondage, which would have us return to the basics of life, like the flour and water of unleavened bread, which brings family and friends together for a joyous and meaningful experience--that causes us to embrace Pesach and its ancient rituals with such loyalty.

I am glad this is so. And regardless of the Haggadah you choose to read from this year, I extend to you and your families my best wishes for a kosher and zissen Pesach!

A thank you note...

I wish to thank everyone who so kindly and graciously sent Shalach Mones on Purim. They were delightful and your thoughtfulness is so very much appreciated! And I want to thank everyone who helped make this year's Purim Extravaganza a huge success. Todah rabbah!

FROM THE PRESIDENTS

Dear TBO/BT family,

By the time you receive this RepORter, you will be knee deep in matzo.

Whether you make Seders at home, attend the first Seder here at the Synagogue, or are a guest at a Seder, the days before Passover are always busy.

We are no different. We are been turning our homes upside down and visions of matzo ball and brisket are dancing in our heads. So our message is a basic one.

Cherish the warmth and love of those with whom you share a Seder or two. Have a Zissen Pesach!

Lillian and Thelma

Our Annual Purim Extravaganza Was a Huge Success!

The social hall was full of people living the spirit of Purim. Yasher Koach to Cantor Stern and the Ritual Committee for their hard work in planning this event. Many thanks and a big Yasher Koach to the leaders of the Megillah reading, Cantor Stern, Walter Newman, Michael Vogel and Lisa Orson. Michael Vogel, our resident thespian, was the quintessential Mordechai. Also adding to the festivities were Russell Kelner, Dr. Eric Dutchman and the shul band, Psalm 150. We thank them all.

Following the reading of the Megillah, everyone enjoyed Temple Beth O'r/Beth Torah's traditional Purim Ice Cream and Hamantashen Social. Todah Rabah to Myrna and Arny Young for donating the hamantashen and the ice cream; to Debbie and Dr. Arthur Freedman for donating the fixings for the ice cream; to Joleen Fridson, Helene Davis, Claudia Dorsch, Esther Schlesinger and the Sisterhood for the Shaloch Mones baskets and the newly minted Purim certificates which were distributed during the evening.

Of course, no Purim Extravaganza is complete without a costume parade and contest. After much deliberation the judges decided the winners in our Junior Division were Alina and Jaden Antonucci. Florence Berman and Cheryl Orson took the honors in the Adult Division. Mazel Tov.

Thank you to everyone who helped make this a very happy occasion. We are already looking forward to next year's Purim Extravaganza.

Sol Sern Lecture

On Sunday evening, March 11, we commemorated the 17th year of remembering Sol Sern.

Reuven Russell, an accomplished actor and comedian, treated an overflowing crowd to an evening of laughter with his good old-fashioned Jewish Humor. It was a delightful evening with more than a few belly laughs thrown in.

Purim was Sol Sern's holiday. He loved dressing up for Purim and jokes were his "coin of the realm" in every season. Sol's immediate and extended family were in attendance. As a congregation we welcomed Gloria, Sol's wife, who was recuperating from a recent mishap.

We thank the Sern family and other donors who support the Sol Sern Fund for this yearly event. We welcome your support, too.

Shabbat Across American at TBO/BT

On March 2nd an ordinary Friday night became an extraordinary Erev Shabbat at Temple Beth O'r/Beth Torah as we joined hundreds of communities across the nation to celebrate Shabbat Across America. Led by Cantor Stern, families, couples and singles of all ages experienced the magic of Shabbat beginning with a delicious Shabbat dinner catered by DeliKing of Clark and ending with a traditional Oneg Shabbat filled with desserts and conversation.

In the interim, we sang time-honored Erev Shabbat songs and prayers and joined together in a Kabbalat Shabbat service in the Sanctuary. Cantor Stern took the opportunity to explain the various parts of the service and the ceremonial rituals, thereby giving us a true taste of Shabbat.

Friday night services, traditional rituals, delicious meals, and lively discussions are all important components of the Shabbat experience, as is the opportunity to spend the evening with friends and family. The fact that we were joined with hundreds of thousands of Jews across the country united in honoring the Shabbat made it even more gratifying.

SISTERHOOD PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

A huge yasher koach to Joleen Fridson for chairing the Shalach Mones committee. We also want to thank all the Sisterhood members who helped put the baskets together, as well as distributing them on Purim. We appreciate the Congregation members who helped deliver them. This year we offered something new. For the same $5.00 as a basket Sisterhood sent certificates to people out of the area. The certificates were designed beautifully by Claudia Dorsch. It was a very successful idea and hopefully more people will participate next year. And, as ever, thank you to the Congregation members for supporting Sisterhood's largest fundraiser after vouchers.

Remember to purchase vouchers for your Pesach shopping.

The Exodus is, religiously-speaking, not an event of history. It is the present. It is the struggle of Jews in the former Soviet Union to regain their Jewish roots. It is their courage to teach and learn about Judaism after decades of deprivation and persecution. For them, the Exodus is now. The struggle to leave slavery and degradation to find freedom and dignity is the story of their lives.

The Exodus is the on-going struggle of Ethiopian Jews to make a life for themselves in Israel and to be reunited with relatives left behind. Israel is their Promised Land and God's promise of freedom and dignity has been fulfilled.

The Exodus is now for us -- we who enjoy freedom and dignity in this country. But not everyone in this land enjoys the blessings of freedom and dignity. Not all enjoy the prosperity and abundance which seem to surround us. One doesn't need to look very far to find someone who is homeless, someone who lacks adequate medical care, someone who seeks employment to support a family. This is not the Promised Land for thousands upon thousands for whom it should be just that.

Many are enslaved not by physical bonds, or even economic bonds, but by bonds of memory and emotion. Slavery comes in many forms, and to these forms of enslavement, the message of Passover speaks loudly, as well. Redemption is the promise for all people.

The members of Sisterhood's presidium wish everyone a zissen Pesach.

Dear Cantor Stern,

My family and I enjoyed the loving, warm hospitality we received from you and the other friends on Friday night at the Shabbat Across America celebration in your Temple. It was very special for me to have my little Johnny sitting next to me during the service.

Your moving sermon on the significance of the Shabbat has inspired me to make an effort to sanctify this period of the week for my family as well...my Thursday evenings will now consist of cleaning and cooking, which Tanja is perfectly happy with!

I appreciate Judaism's path of applied spirituality in everyday life....

Shalom,
